A complete report of the convention was given by Mr. Shire. He stated that at the convention more than 3000 leagues and over one million bowlers had bowled in the congress tournament. He also said that the congress recommends that all bowling associations sponsor forming of junior leagues in bowling.

The next report called for by Mr. Robinson was from Warren Jennings, tournament manager. Mr. Jennings reported that when the tournament was started last year a lot of people said Bristol would not support a general tournament but strange as it seems there were 20 entries in last year's tournament and in this year's there were more than 1,500 lines running and 38 teams entered. The winning scores were far above the winning scores of last year.

Mr. Jennings said that one of the

THE ATLANTIC PACT

An Open Letter to the People of the United States (Editor's Note: Because of the immense importance of the subject matter discussed, this newspaper is reprinting in full the Economic Council Letter No. 213, April 15, 1949, which is the publication of National Economic Council, Inc., with headquarters in the Empire State Building, New York City.)

"Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation?—Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground?—Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European Ambition, Rivalship, Interest, Humour or Caprice?" (Washington's Farewell Address.)

To the People of the United States: We have arrived at a decisive moment in American history. The question involved in ratification of the "North Atlantic Pact" is this: Shall we, by interweaving our destiny with that of Western Europe, surrender American sovereignty? Or, shall the Pact be rejected and our independence be maintained?

Let our choice be clear. We can have the Pact and surrender American independence. We can keep our independence and reject the Pact. We cannot have both.

No matter how skillfully it may be denied, adoption of the Pact means we surrender our own right to decide, ourselves, the destiny of the United States. Like most questions raised by the internationalists, this question is purposely beclouded. They do not frankly say now that ratification of the Pact will mean the die is cast. But at some future time, they will contend that America is already committed.

Are You Told the Truth?

Few news writers will tell the American people the stark nature of this decision. Already you, the people, are in process of being utterly misinformed, as when you are told by men who ought to know better that the Pact exists, not to wage war, but "to wage peace," which is meaningless.

The Pact is a show of force, wherein the gage of battle is flung upon the doorstep of the Kremlin. That "Peace" may be the object of those who fling it down does not alter the nature of the act. In throwing down that gage, we liquidate the experiment in independence begun July 4, 1776. Ratification of the Alliance will be the Act of Re-

HANSEL AND GRETLE TO BE PRODUCED HERE

The Sisterhood of Ahavath Achim Is Sponsoring The Event

TO BE HERE ON MAY 7

When the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre of New York comes to the Grand Theatre here on Sat., May 7th at 10 a. m. right will be rewarded, truth prevail, and joy reign supreme. Yes, the good old-fashioned virtues come into their own again in the Clare Tree Major dramatization of "Hansel and Gretel".

"Children live in a world where truth and justice often seem defeated for the moment, while greed and evil often seem to win," says the chairman. "And that's more than a little confusing to youngsters whose natural instinct tells them the villain ought to get his just deserts."

In "Hansel and Gretel", which Sisterhood of Ahavath Achim are bringing here for a single performance on May 7th, children will be glad to see that the proper order of things is upheld. The lovely fairy tale, with its timeless appeal, tells of the two children, good-natured and uncomplaining in the face of poverty and hunger, who are abandoned in the woods by a hard-pressed stepmother, who hopes by having two fewer mouths to feed to stave off starvation for herself and

2 Billion Dollar Pie for Veterans

Washington—The government is preparing to slice up for 15 million veterans a two-billion dollar pie stuffed with excessive G. I. insurance payments. CHIEF FRED A. ROFF

THREE ROTARY CLUBS HOLD JOINT MEETING

Not What is Done For A Boy, But What is Done "With" Him That Counts

SPEAKER, F. A. ROFF

ANDALUSIA, Apr. 27—"It is not what you do for your boy but what you do with him that counts, and if the fathers of this country would recognize, realize and cultivate this practice then 90 per cent of the problems of juvenile delinquency would be wiped off the slate tomorrow," declared Fred A. Roff, internationally-recognized authority on crime prevention, when he addressed members of the Bensalem, Bristol and Morrisville Rotary clubs in a tri-club meeting in King Hall here, last evening.

"Our youth are the seeds of destiny... they will spell the successes in America tomorrow. They will carry on the heritages that have been handed down from generation to generation. They will continue to fight for and preserve the wonderful freedoms and privileges which we enjoy in America. But we must cultivate these seeds, our youth of today, for they are America's greatest asset."

"And we are wasting this asset, our seeds of destiny, very badly. We in this country have been able to cope with and master every problem of war, finance, building, industry and business, until we cross the doorsteps of our own homes. And there we have fallen down on our duties and responsibilities as fathers."

"This weakness has become our greatest evil of today... our problem of juvenile delinquency. Yes, we are doing a splendid job in the rehabilitation of our youth, but youth is falling by the wayside far faster than they can be turned out in a rehabilitated state. We must work in the field of prevention rather than in the field of rehabilitation," the speaker emphasized.

Roff, who has been chief of police of Morrisville, N. J., since 1933, is a former international president of the Police Chiefs of the World, as well as president of the New Jersey State County Detective Association; the Morrisville Rotary Club; and New Jersey State Chiefs of Police.

He pointed out that "we, the greatest nation on earth, wait until the fruit of youth has grown and gone bad before we concern ourselves about what made it go bad."

"We give our youth homes, education and all of the material things, but we do not go far enough. Continued on Page Three

WHEAT SURPLUS PROBLEM

Governor Carlson of Kansas is greatly concerned about the possibility of another big wheat crop and its possible effect on farmer income. Storage facilities for grain in Kansas total 450,000,000 bushels, but old grain still stored leaves little room for the new crop.

The Kansas wheat harvest is now estimated at 245,000,000 bushels, and it may be larger if weather conditions continue favorable. There is a big acreage in the nation's premier wheat state, the condition of the crop is good and there is a chance the yield may approach the 1947 harvest of nearly 300,000,000 bushels. That would be approximately one-half the nation's needs.

The national picture is one of an approaching gigantic wheat surplus which may equal a full year's supply in reserve by the end of the crop year on June 30, 1950. There are reports of drought conditions in Europe which may result in a call for greater export of United States wheat than now seems possible.

If this country could export, during the coming year, 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, or more, as in previous postwar years, the problem would be less acute. But if the world needs that much American wheat, it will not have the money to pay for it.

The era of easy wheat money has run out. From now on high prices for wheat will be possible only if buttressed by heavy government subsidies, or if there is a crop failure.

WAR GAMES REALISM

United States Army's spring maneuvers in western Germany are giving the 70,000-man "defensive force" a working over from all angles. The other day, with the war games in their middle phase, the high command turned loose 30 Americans to pose as enemy agents, saboteurs and provocateurs.

Newsmen reporting the mock war said the defensive force took the diversion in stride and went about tightening up security measures and rounding up the "spies."

Then the high command threw the embattled defenders another curve. For more than a day the Armed Forces Radio Network had been carrying taunting messages, in the best Axis Sally tradition, to the GI defenders. A pair of German girls spelled each other in personifying a '49 model female propagandist who calls herself "Aggressor Aggie."

Col. Samuel Conley, deputy director of the maneuvers, in making the announcement of this psychological aspect of the war games, said "some people may think these ideas silly." The colonel seems to be needlessly on the defensive. War games are supposed to be what the name implies.

To gloss over, or skip, any situation that might be encountered in a shooting war, would be more than unrealistic. To do so would make a farce out of an exercise, and ignore certain well-known facts of life.

in the all-but-universal deluge of our century. If America falls, freedom falls.

If this Alliance would help preserve America, we should be for it even if it involved a break with tradition. But it will not help preserve America. Its effect will be the very opposite: it will mean the destruction of America. The Pact is a measure neither of intelligence nor necessity, but another crowning evidence of the incompetence and culpable ignorance of those in charge of American policy at the very top level.

Where Is the Intelligence?

First, let's clear away some underbrush. The good intentions of some supporters of the Pact are immaterial. The road to Hell is paved with good intentions. Immaturity is no substitute for intelligence. The noblest of men can be killed if he steers his car over a cliff in the naive belief he is on the highway. Mere good intent is no evidence the good intentioner is a realist.

The Atlantic Pact is a final repudiation of the basic concepts of the United Nations. With this step, America abandons the philosophy of "collective security" and embraces the philosophy of balance-of-power-alliances. No words of UN employees, delegates or anybody else can obscure this fact. All the pious talk about the Pact being "within the framework of the Charter" is eyewash, and every informed person knows it.

The National Economic Council has never had faith in the two attempts of our times to guarantee peace through "collective security." It was never really collective, and it brought more danger than security. The League of Nations was always more of a net irritant in world affairs than an emollient. The friction that its failure was due to the absence of the United States from its membership is palpably absurd. Its failure was due simply to the fact that the vital interests of its members were not identical but divergent, and each nation acted to serve what it believed to be its own vital interest—as anybody but an imbecile should have been able to predict.

The same situation developed in the UN, only much more quickly. "Collective security" is a dangerous illusion so long as divergent interests persist. So-called "statesmen" who ignore this primary fact are barely competent to be village selectmen.

Today, "statesmen" of this or smaller caliber who happen to have charge of the fate of millions of people, find these facts pressing in upon them. But they refuse to admit their miscalculation, even while abandoning the whole stupid mess. They have talked about "collective security" so loud and so long that in the very act of burying it, they tell us that the new Pact is "within the framework of the Charter."

Nor has the National Economic Council any faith in the new "balance of power." It is a bankrupt solution offered by bankrupts to conceal their failures.

Alliances to create power balances are about the oldest device known to history. Millenniums ago, Egypt and the various great powers that succeeded each other in the East, habitually built up balance of power combinations against each other. They were all designed to "preserve peace," and they invariably resulted in war. The balance-of-power philosophy has dogged rulers of nations from the beginning of time, and of all the devices of statecraft it is perhaps the most discredited. The nearest it ever came to success was when in the latter half of the nineteenth and the first fourteen years of the twentieth century, Britain kept the continent of Europe in uneasy balance. But even that apparent success turned into the greatest disaster of recorded history. It gave us the two World Wars. So now we are going to try again!

How Balance Unbalances

The reasons why the balance-of-power theory always fails are simple. It exacerbates irritations between nations by investing every dispute with a graver possible consequence. Each side of the "balance" grows more suspicious of the other. General wars are made easier to start because, if a nation on one side gets into a dispute with a nation on the other, all nations of both combinations are automatically drawn in. Conflicts, instead of being localized, become universalized. Gasoline, not water, is thrown on the fire. Small nations belonging to one combination, emboldened by their alliance with more powerful nations, become truculent. Human nature being what it is, combined with the fact that disputes arise arithmetically, makes the final result mathematically predictable. The perfect example of this is how the nations were drawn one by one into World War I over a local dispute between Austria and Serbia. Had Serbia not been under the protection of Russia, and had Austria not been allied with Germany, there would have been no World War in 1914.

Knowledge of such facts by Washington and the other founding fathers prompted them to urge their own generation, and their posterity (ourselves) not to enter entangling alliances. Their views were not parochial. They were the result of profound insight into the lessons of history. Nor were they in any essential sense based upon the existence of the "Atlantic Barrier," as has so often been falsely represented. Washington knew that the Atlantic was no barrier, but a naval highway. Had he not just led a victorious war against an enemy from the other shore? The reason why Washington's advice is different from that of our current "statesmen" is that those who control our destiny now, are ignoring history. Those who ignore the past are doomed to repeat the errors of the past.

But it may be asked, "If you are against 'collective security' and also against a balance-of-power alliance, what are you for?"

Theodore Roosevelt once said, "Speak softly and carry a big stick." Give no provocation you can avoid, but be prepared to fight if you must.

The so-called North Atlantic Alliance exactly reverses this sound counsel. We are not walking softly. We are marching to rolling drums. Nor do we have a big stick, though we are talking about getting one.

The atomic bomb, contrary to popular superstition, is not the kind of big stick which military planners need for the Alliance. The atomic bomb is a terrifying weapon, and a major factor in all military calculations. But it is a commonplace of present-day military thinking that if the nations of Western Europe are to resist the Soviet Union in case of war, and thus be profitable members of the Alliance, they must be "re-armed." That is, entirely apart from the Bomb, the armies of our European partners might as well not exist unless they are adequately equipped to offer real resistance to the Russians in the field. For the Atom Bomb could not be decisive against armies deployed for action.

What degree of re-armament would prevent Russia from rolling to the Atlantic in a fortnight? Military experts say that it would take at least fifteen armored divisions and fifty divisions of other types to hold off the Red Army for any considerable time. That is about the minimum, and more would be better.

Equipment for a lesser force would be 100 per cent wasted—would be like trying to span a hundred-foot chasm with a forty-foot bridge.

Now, Look at the Budget

What would such adequate re-armament cost? That is a vital question, because there are limits to what the American economy can stand. Even if the idea were sound, we would still have to inquire first whether we have the means to carry it out. Unless we are ready to surrender our liberties to a slave state of our own.

The present cost of equipping one armored division is about $250,000,000. So fifteen would cost us $3,750,000,000. That does not include the cost of training personnel, pay and maintenance of men and machines, or ammunition and gasoline. There is a pious hope in Washington that our Allies might supply these items—but we had better forget that. Only our Marshall Plan money now keeps the budgets of the Socialist countries of Western Europe in anything resembling balance. How could they shoulder the cost of re-armament?

Yet the armored divisions are only the beginning. Fifty other divisions must be equipped, too. We must provide them with vast quantities of material whose cost to us in dollars would be perhaps fifteen billions, but whose cost in exhaustion of our own material resources could be disastrous. Most of the equipment would have to come from the United States because Western Europe cannot manufacture such items in quantity. Marshall Plan and re-armament requirements for Europe could easily cost 30 to 50 billions during the next four years.

This does not take account of the military budget of the U.S.A. itself, now running above 16 billions a year. If the Atlantic Pact is ratified, with re-armament following on its heels, and if any important part of Mr. Truman's "social welfare" program is adopted, the Federal peace-time budget could average 60 billions a year for the next four years.

Two urgent questions arise.

First, can our economy support such expenditures?

In our considered judgment, it cannot. Such sums will place a fatal strain on the American economy—which is precisely what Soviet Russia would like to see.

It is true that we spent more during the late war. But the strain of that effort is still being carried by the economy. The new expenditures will merely be added to the strain and depletion of resources resulting from the old effort.

"We'll Tax and Tax"

To get such sums, we must either increase taxes above the point of diminishing returns, or else we must resort to vast deficit financing—confiscation by inflation. Either course would destroy the American Republic. The only way in which the economic machine could function would be by harsh bureaucratic control and operation of industry. That would bring us Socialism overnight. We would become, like Soviet Russia or Hitler's Germany, a one-party country. For with one to two million carefully placed Federal employees added to the more than two million already in the office, who is so foolish as to imagine the Republican Party or any other party could wrest control from the gang in power in the Administration today? Then, by aid of the pending "Economic Stability" act, the American people would have become veritably enslaved.

The "controls" would simply be the use of force to hide the fact that the whole economy is running at a ruinous deficit—a deficit which at some day of reckoning must be paid either in diluted money or in the ruin of Americans who have savings upon which they depend. Control of a deficit-operated economy means only expropriation (that is stealing) of goods that others have accumulated. The Politicians may control, but they will not pay. The people will pay with impoverishment.

Ratification of the North Atlantic Pact, then, followed by the minimum appropriations necessary to give it any chance of being militarily successful, will be beyond the means of our economy. It will also lead straight to State Socialism in America. And State Socialism will mean an end to liberty for everybody except the bureaucrats.

But let us ask a further question: Will Congress appropriate the money?

Almost certainly it will not appropriate the huge sums mentioned above. It will probably compromise, and if Congress compromises, what will be the result?

Compromise will be disaster compounded. If we give Western Europe less than the minimum necessary to hold off the Red Army, we guarantee that at some future date, to be decided by the Politburo alone, Western Europe can be occupied. Then, if we have anything left, we shall face the task of again organizing vast armies to retake the Continent for our Allies.

But this is precisely what the Alliance is supposed and intended to prevent. The peoples of Western Europe are not interested in that kind of war, even if victorious. They do not want to be occupied, then liberated. They want not to be occupied. The only reason this Alliance interests them at all is that in it they see a hope of avoiding Soviet occupation.

Yet, if we give them less than the minimum that they now request—or demand—they cannot resist occupation.

The leaders of the Western European governments may be foggy social theorists, but as to occupation they can be counted upon to be stark realists. The great majority of their people wish to avoid occupation. What will happen if they see that, after all the fanfare and oratory, America does not give them enough to defend themselves? They are almost certain to try to get the best terms they can from the Soviet Union.

To ratify the Alliance, then, but not to implement it with vast armament, will infallibly result in throwing Western Europe into the embrace of the Soviets. All Marshall Plan funds will have been wasted. Whatever armament we have sent will be under the control of those who have entered the Soviet orbit.

We'd Better Face It Now

The alternatives we have set forth are real, and we had better learn to live with them. We can bankrupt our economy to provide Western Europe with the minimum necessary, and thereby plunge ourselves irremediably into State Socialism. Or, we can give Western Europe less than the minimum, and ensure that those nations will presently make terms with Soviet Russia.

But the first alternative is not so simple as it sounds. Even if we should make the sacrifices necessary to arm Western Europe, we could not be sure of stopping the Soviet Union.

Communist infiltration in Western Europe has gone too far for us to count upon an undivided effort from our Allies in case war should begin even after they have been adequately armed. There is no guarantee that both Italy and France would not be rent by civil war of such a nature as to paralyze their armies and render them impotent to protect their frontiers. Indeed, such civil war is highly probable.

Even what would happen in Britain is clouded with doubt. The Labor Government there is still supplying both Russia and Poland with implements and machinery essential for war. Infiltration of Communists and Communist-sympathizers within the Labor government is much greater than commonly understood. There is grave reason to believe that in Great Britain, Communist agents could seize or destroy vital communications and power centers and take other action to prevent any effective war effort being launched from Britain.

Who, then, would march against the Soviet Union on the continent? Would the Red tide be stemmed by the armies of Luxembourg, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Belgium and Portugal?

Another fact that complicates the rearming of Western Europe lies in the power of the Soviet Union itself. Are we so naive as to imagine that the masters of the Kremlin will sit by idle if they see us actually building up preponderant military power in the West?

And it deserves note that in the framing of the Atlantic Pact, Spain has been left out. Yet Spain is potentially the strongest anti-Communist country on the continent of Europe. The leaving out of Spain is a clear indication that Marxist influences had a powerful say in the framing of the Atlantic Pact, just as they have had in our public affairs, foreign and domestic, for many years past.

To Bomb—Or Not to Bomb

Doubtless Russian cities, in the event of war, would disappear under atomic attack—but what strategic effect would that have? It could not destroy the Red Army in the field. It could not prevent or even slow the occupation. And, after the occupation, would we bomb Paris, Rome, the Hague, Brussels, Copenhagen or Oslo with atomic weapons? Or London?

There is reason to believe that the Soviet Union has deliberately counted the cost of atomic warfare and decided that its great cities are expendable. But even if we should bomb every important city both in the Soviet Union and in Western Europe, we would still have to land and occupy a Continent in which frustration, privation and hatred of us for atom bombing our friends would be obstacles perhaps more formidable than the Red Army. Nor is there any guarantee that the great cities of the United States would escape atomic bombing—which in our case would be infinitely more serious for us than the destruction of Russian cities for the Soviets.

The American Alternative

The alternative we propose is not perfect. It is not guaranteed to win in any struggle between us and the USSR. But in this world there can be no absolute guarantee of safety. We must intelligently do the best we can, keep alert, and place our cause in God's hand.

First, we should preserve America's own freedom of action. The Atlantic Pact should be rejected, no matter how much loss of "face" some of our bureaucrats in the State Department may suffer.

Second, we should at once and with drastic thoroughness proceed to root out every Communist and Communist fellow-traveler from Government service. They should be given a week to resign, and after that should be subject to the death penalty if they have not declared themselves. We should immediately outlaw the Communist Party, take its key personnel into custody and keep strict watch upon the others. Nothing else will so convince the Soviet leadership we mean business. The firmer we are with Communists and their sympathizers in America, the more respect will the USSR have for us.

Third, we should take steps to make real a Western Hemisphere defense zone. Its outposts should be as far-flung as geography and politics will allow. Bases should be secured, at least in Spain, which is probably (with Portugal) the only area in Western Europe capable of sustained defense. A sound military defense can be made for the Western Hemisphere without the North Atlantic Alliance, and it will be within our capacity and means. Nor need it result in the socialization of our own economy.

Fourth, we should drastically cut the bureaucracy in our own Government, thus releasing large numbers of persons for productive economic activities as well as reducing Federal expense. We should reject once and for all the whole Truman program for a socialized welfare state. This will be stripping our decks for action.

Fifth, while not being indifferent to the fate of free peoples anywhere, we should become reconciled to the reality that it does not lie within our means or power to see to the defense of everybody. If the USSR occupies Western Europe, it will be a tragedy. But the tragedy will not be as great for them or for us as the alternatives that would follow adoption of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Nor would Soviet conquest of Europe be permanent. Students of the history of Empires know well that the conqueror is normally beaten, not by external force, but by the weaknesses and internal contradictions of the system he himself sets up. In our opinion the USSR, in taking over Europe and Asia, will be attempting far too much. Within a few years this will become apparent. And when freedom-loving peoples at last revolt against bondage, their case will be much more hopeful than if the Continent had first been blasted by bitter, atomic war.

The Over-Stuffed Giant

Indeed we think that if this strategy is followed, we may never have to fight the USSR at all. Doubtless they expect and want to rule the world. But with more than they can digest in Europe and Asia, their conquests will weaken rather than strengthen them. The very rigidity of the Soviet leaders in not permitting the smallest variation from their own blue-prints among satellites, can be their undoing. And the existence of a unified, homogeneous core of armed power in our own Hemisphere will dissuade them from attacking us if they have two fermenting continents to hold down.

American participation in two world wars has, on balance, multiplied the evil results of both wars. While we went into the first with the best of motives, and were slyly and deceptively maneuvered into the second, if we permit alien influence to shape our course now, then America is doomed.

She will have been reconquered by those tyrannies from which our ancestors fled the Old World to escape.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

New "Liberal" Leader?

Washington, April 27.
THE new Senator from North Carolina, Dr. Frank P. Graham, appointed to fill an unexpired term, comes so widely advertised as a "great liberal" that some say he will soon leap into the leadership of that strangely assorted and rather cloudy-minded group, both Democrats and Republicans, who linked together under the vague name of "liberalism," constantly and boringly mouth the word.

It is a possibility. On the other hand, there is hope—exceedingly slight, it is true—that his personal taste, his contacts with other senators and the responsibilities of his new job may somewhat dilute Dr. Graham's extreme "liberalism" and induce him to consider political realities the existence of which so far apparently he has slight knowledge. However, it must be admitted there is nothing in the good doctor's past record and nothing in his conversation and companions since he arrived in Washington upon which to base this hope.

The odds are heavy that he will pursue the course upon which he embarked some years ago and which has won him the admiration and affection of most of the extreme left-wingers and bleeding-heart statesmen in both parties. An example of this occurred right after his appointment. His name came up in the Senate and a debate ensued. There was no suggestion from anyone that Dr. Graham was not a thoroughly patriotic and loyal citizen but it was brought out that he seemed to have an irresistible tendency to join organizations and associations regarded by the Un-American Activities Committee and the FBI as subversive, and that some of them had been Communist fronts. The most that was said about this was that he had been "careless," did not know they were communistically controlled.

IMMEDIATELY two of our most valiant and vociferous senatorial "liberals," one a Democrat, the other a Republican—to wit, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, and Senator Wayne Morse, of Oregon—rushed to his "defense," became lyrical in their eulogies. Not everyone would rejoice at entering the Senate under the championship of these two statesmen. It has been said that Senator Pepper is less beloved by his colleagues regardless of party than any other member of their body. A more likable character personally, Senator Morse perhaps is more volatile. Not long ago, some senator, without mentioning names, expressed his desire for some relief from what he called the "talking senators."

Next morning, promptly applying this to himself, Senator Morse entered upon a speech that lasted the whole afternoon and filled ten solid pages of the Congressional Record. It was devoted almost entirely to an explanation of himself as a "liberal" and his definition of "liberalism," along with affirmation of his right to talk and his determination to keep on talking, whether nonliberal senators are bored or not.

SEVERAL of his colleagues interrupted to tell Senator Morse what a fine character he really is. Modestly deprecating this personal praise as from "biased friends," Senator Morse then really went to town in describing his unshakable determination to battle for the "underdog" while life lasts. Why Mr. Morse places Dr. Graham "high up" on any list of the "Greatest Americans" may be due to three reasons—1, that they served together on the Roosevelt National War Labor Board; 2, that though named to represent the public there, generally they were as strongly pro labor as the labor representatives themselves; 3, that their manner of expressing their views is almost as similar as their views.

FOR example in one famous extremely pro-union opinion written in 1942, Dr. Graham likened the labor unions to the early Christians of the great Roman Empire who, despite oppression and persecution finally "transformed the sackable City of Rome into the unsackable City of God." In another part of the same opinion he linked the unions with the Pilgrim Fathers in these words: "The little band of religious pilgrims who in seeking the right to organize for the worship of God . . . fetched up on the wintry shores of Massachusetts where their spiritual heroism made Plymouth Rock one of the foundation stones of self-government in America." It is not likely Senator Morse would dissent from these comparisons. His senatorial records seem to prove his acquiescence.

DR. GRAHAM is hardly going to disappoint either such ardent admirers as the Messrs. Pepper and Morse—or the CIO bosses who joyously cheered his appointment. Also, he has said that in general he favors the "Truman policies" which caused Mr. Truman to write an exceedingly eulogistic letter about him. By some it is held that his presence and influence in the Senate may make possible successful revival of Mr. Truman's "civil rights" program. However, there is some doubt. Dr. Graham could, in general, favor the Truman "civil rights" program and still believe, as does Senator Taft, that a Federal law is not the way to make it effective. Also, he could be in favor of the modification of the Taft-Hartley Act without regarding it as wholly evil and desiring its complete obliteration. Also, it might be but once in the Senate, he would not entirely subscribe to the soothing, not to say, soft-headed, New Deal theory that deficits are unimportant and the size of the national debt is immaterial.

AFTER all, despite periods of "carelessness," Dr. Graham is an audacious, able and upright man. Maybe as a senator he will mean more to him than they did when he was just a crusader for the good, the true and the beautiful without power to do anything much except join something. It may be his perspective will change and he be able better to distinguish demagogues from statesmen and humbugs from honest men. There isn't much hope, but there is some.

functions of the association was to run championship tournaments and that by following the rules of A.B.C. everyone enjoyed themselves.

In the association report he stated there will be a bowling tournament run each year by the association and that all trophies have been donated by the business houses of Bristol.

Mr. Jennings said that A. Boccardo had rolled several 700 series during league competition this year. "He is the only bowler who has been able to do this in a good many years. He is a real bowler and sportsman."

Mr. Robinson next called for an election of officers for the ensuing year. The following were elected: President, Robert Robinson; first vice president, Samuel Shire; second vice president, Andrew Moore; third vice president, Albert Boccardo. The office of fourth vice president was left open for Morrisville to elect their own representative; secretary, Warren Jennings; treasurer, Andrew MacArthur; executive committee, Fred Stewart, William Wichser and Horace States.

Addressing the group Mr. Rathke who said "the trophies about to be presented were donated by various businessmen of Bristol and the trophy committee consisted of Samuel Shire, J. S. Lynn and C. Morgan, who deserve a lot of credit for all the work they have done."

Mr. Rathke made the presentation of trophies to the following:

The Chamber of Commerce bowling trophy is a three-year trophy and is presented to the outstanding bowling team of the Bristol Bowling Association. The team winning the trophy for this year was the Bucks County Rescue Squad.

Peter Cattani presented the Cattani's Beverages trophy to Warren Jennings. The trophy is for the outstanding bowler of the year—one who has done more to better bowling than anyone else. It is not just for bowling score alone but for sportsmanship and service to the sport of bowling.

And when little Hansel and his sister Gretel fall into the clutches of the wicked and deceitful old witch it seems that the children are having more than their share of troubles and distressing adventures—which only makes the "happily ever after" ending that much more satisfying. And the happy ending in a Clare Tree Major production does not come until the youngsters in the audience have had all the excitement, thrills and merriment their young hearts can safely absorb.

Claims Mrs. Major: "While it is, of course, necessary for children to understand realities, so that they may cope with the world of today it is also imperative that their faith in the future is firmly grounded. The players of the St. Ann's A. A. basketball and baseball teams will receive their individual awards at a later date.

We must go further. We must supervise, raise and know our boys. We must give them of our love and attention. We must teach them to respect and love their dads. Our boys want companionship, and we fathers who are too busy with things of the world must come to realize this duty and responsibility," Chief Roff concluded.

Philip G. Mack, president of the Bensalem Club, opened the meeting with greetings to the members of the Bristol and Morrisville units. Group singing was led by Elmer B. VanSant, Bensalem. Following the dinner, entertainment was provided by William Jaffe with his accordion, and Cecil Williams, vocalist.

Former Croydon Youth Admits Starting Fire

A former Croydon youth has admitted, it is stated, that he set fires because he is "alone and friendless."

The young man, who pleaded to be sent to jail, is Clifford T. Bright. He was held without bail for the grand jury yesterday by Magistrate V. A. Dean, in Philadelphia.

Arrest of Bright took place when he walked into the Detective Division in City Hall, Philadelphia, and admitted setting a fire in a chair in his room in the 1000 block of Spruce street, Philadelphia, Sunday, according to detectives.

Queried for a time, Bright is said to have stated that he has no friends, adding, "nobody cares for me."

TOWNSHIP NINE RALLIES BUT FALLS SHORT OF WIN

A Bristol Township rally fell short yesterday afternoon as Coach Stan Dick's team bowed to the Bristol High aggregation, 9-8, on Memorial Park field. It was the third straight win for the Warriors.

Bristol had a nice 9-4 lead going into the last half of the ninth when trouble started. Pearl got his second hit of the afternoon, a double to right. Dengley batted for Conn and struck out. Struble walked but was picked off first for the second out. Ehrenfeld hit to Braam who fumbled. Muth singled to right and Pearl crossed. Harry Elsibrey walked a double to right and both Muth and Ehrenfeld scored. Bob Jones' two-bagger scored Elsibrey with the fourth run. Lou Loeffler was purposely passed and Rigby ended the game by fanning.

Coach Jerry Bloom used two hurlers in the game. Joe Findar started and when he weakened in the sixth, Jim Morrell went in. Paul Schmidt and Lane Conn hurled for Township, the latter throwing in the last half of the sixth. Pindar was the winning pitcher while the defeat went to Schmidt.

Harry Elsibrey, Township first-sacker, was the hitting star of the afternoon, getting a single, double and triple. Both Frank Barbetta and Frank Rich had two hits for Bristol with the latter driving in three runs. Pearl had two for two for Township and also scored a pair of markers.

Barbetta did a fine job behind the plate for the Warriors. He tossed out two runners attempting to steal and also picked a runner off third and another off first.

Bristol took a 1-0 lead in the first when with two out, Barbetta singled and scored on a hit by Bill Moll and Nichol's error. It added two more in the second on a walk, a hit batsman, two stolen bases and two errors.

Township scored its first run in the third. Struble singled, and went to second on Rich's error. He advanced to third on Braam's error and scored on a wild pitch.

Joe Dominick's long triple and Pindar's hit gave Coach Bloom's team its fourth run in the fourth but Township tied it in the fifth. After Holton struck out, Pearl had a single, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Schmidt's single. Struble hit safely and after Ehrenfeld flied out, Muth doubled to score two runs. Elsibrey grounded out.

Bristol added three tallies in the fifth. Moll walked and stole second. He crossed the plate on Rich's hit. Rich stole. Petrizzi flied out, scoring Moll. Dominick was hit with a pitched ball. Bascio singled to right, scoring Rich. Moll scored while Findar was being thrown out.

The Warriors' final pair of runs were made off Conn. After Morrell grounded out, Barbetta singled to center. He advanced on a passed ball. Moll walked. Rich scored both runners with a long hit to center.

Both Petrizzi and Dominick struck out.

Township's four-run spurge followed in the seventh frame.

A complete report of the convention was given by Mr. Shire. He stated that at the convention more than 3000 leagues and over one million bowlers had bowled in the congress tournament. He also said that the congress recommends that all bowling associations sponsor forming of junior leagues in bowling.

The next report called for by Mr. Robinson was from Warren Jennings, tournament manager. Mr. Jennings reported that when the tournament was started last year a lot of people said Bristol would not support a general tournament but strange as it seems there were 20 entries in last year's tournament and in this year's there were more than 1,500 lines running and 38 teams entered. The winning scores were far above the winning scores of last year.

THE ATLANTIC PACT

An Open Letter to the People of the United States
(Editor's Note: Because of the immense importance of the subject matter discussed, this newspaper is reprinting in full the Economic Council Letter No. 213, April 15, 1949, which is the publication of National Economic Council, Inc., with headquarters in the Empire State Building, New York City.)

"Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation?—Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground?—Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European Ambition, Rivalship, and Humour or Caprice?" (Washington's Farewell Address.)

To the People of the United States:
We have arrived at a decisive moment in American history. The question involved in ratification of the "North Atlantic Pact" is this: Shall we, by interweaving our destiny with that of Western Europe, surrender American sovereignty? Or, shall the Pact be rejected and our independence be maintained?

Let our choice be clear. We can have the Pact and surrender American independence. We can keep our independence and reject the Pact. We cannot have both.

No matter how skillfully it may be denied, adoption of the Pact means we surrender our own right to decide, ourselves, the destiny of the United States. Like most questions raised by the internationalists, this question is purposely beclouded. They do not frankly say now that ratification of the Pact will mean the die is cast. But at some future time, they will contend that America is already committed.

Are You Told the Truth?
Few news writers will tell the American people the stark nature of this decision. Already you, the people, are in process of being utterly misinformed, as when you are told by men who ought to know better that the Pact exists, not to wage war, but "to wage peace," which is meaningless.

The Pact is a show of force, wherein the gage of battle is flung upon the doorstep of the Kremlin. That "Peace" may be the object of those who fling it down does not alter the nature of the act. In throwing down that gage, we liquidate the experiment in independence begun July 4, 1776. Ratification of the Alliance will be the Act of Re-

The Sisterhood of Abavath Achim Is Sponsoring The Event

TO BE HERE ON MAY 7

When the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre of New York comes to the Grand Theatre here on Sat., May 7th at 10 a. m. right will be rewarded, truth prevail, and joy reign supreme. "Yes, the good old-fashioned virtues come into their own again in the Clare Tree Major dramatization of "Hansel and Gretel".

"Children live in a world where truth and justice often seem defeated for the moment, while greed and evil often seem to win," says the chairman. "And that's more than a little confusing to youngsters whose natural instinct tells them the villain ought to get his just deserts."

In "Hansel and Gretel", which Sisterhood of Abavath Achim are bringing here for a single performance on May 7th, children will be glad to see that the proper order of things is upheld. The lovely fairy tale, with its timeless appeal, tells of two children, good-natured and uncomplaining in the face of poverty and hunger, who are abandoned in the woods by a hard-pressed stepmother, who hopes by having two fewer mouths to feed to stave off starvation for herself and

CHIEF FRED A. ROFF

THREE ROTARY CLUBS HOLD JOINT MEETING

Not What is Done For A Boy, But What is Done "With" Him That Counts

SPEAKER, F. A. ROFF

ANDALUSIA, Apr. 27.—"It is not what you do for your boy but what you do with him that counts, and if the fathers of this country would recognize, realize and cultivate this practice then 90 per cent of the problems of juvenile delinquency would be wiped off the slate tomorrow," declared Fred A. Roff, internationally-recognized authority on crime prevention, when he addressed members of the Bensalem, Bristol and Morrisville Rotary clubs in a tri-club meeting in King Hall here, last evening.

"Our youth are the seeds of destiny... they will spell the successes in America tomorrow. They will carry on the heritages that have been handed down from generation to generation. They will continue to fight for and preserve the wonderful freedoms and privileges which we enjoy in America. But we must cultivate these seeds, our youth of today, for they are America's greatest asset.

"And we are wasting this asset, our seeds of destiny, very badly. We in this country have been able to cope with and master every problem of war, finance, building, industry and business, until we cross the doorsteps of our own homes. And there we have fallen down on our duties and responsibilities as fathers.

"This weakness has become our greatest evil of today... our problem of juvenile delinquency. Yes, we are doing a splendid job in the rehabilitation of our youth, but youth is failing by the wayside far faster than they can be turned out in a rehabilitated state. We must work in the field of prevention rather than in the field of rehabilitation," the speaker emphasized.

Roff, who has been chief of police of Morrisville, N. J., since 1933, is a former international president of the Police Chiefs of the World, as well as president of the New Jersey State County Detective Association; the Morrisville Rotary Club; and New Jersey State Chiefs of Police.

He pointed out that "we, the greatest nation on earth, wait until the fruit of youth has grown and gone bad before we concern ourselves about what made it go bad."

Urges Continued Support For The Salvation Army

Continued support of the 1949 Salvation Army Maintenance Fund Campaign in Bucks County was urged today by Wallace G. Murfit, chairman, in a statement calling upon volunteer chairmen and workers in the area to complete their solicitations as early as possible this year.

Mr. Murfit stated: "At the first campaign report luncheon held recently Bucks County reported a total of $4,767, or 39.7 per cent of the goal. Our quota this year is $12,034. With the continued generous support of the people of Bucks County we are sure to go over the top. I urge all of you to lend your wholehearted support to the 1949 drive and to get in your subscriptions and donations as early this year as possible."

The second campaign report luncheon of the 1949 campaign will be held April 28, in the Clover Room of the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, with more than 350 volunteer workers from the three fund-raising divisions of the campaign in attendance.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Frederick B. Smille, former district attorney of Montgomery county, and chairman of the Norris-town advisory board of The Salvation Army. Overall quota for the city and the three country area in the drive is $750,000, the same as last year and the minimum amount required to maintain operation of the "Army's" 35 agencies of service in the Philadelphia and suburban areas.

Basketball and Baseball Players Are Honored At Affair

SPEECHES OMITTED

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 27.—The annual banquet of the Bristol Basketball League was held in the Lexington Casino last night. Awards were made to the various winners of the season and a delightful menu served. A floor show and dancing were enjoyed.

It was a basketball affair, but inasmuch as the Bristol Suburban Baseball League did not hold a banquet last season, awards were also given to the baseball winners.

Thomas Juno, league advisor, welcomed the players and guests to the affair and introduced the toastmaster, Robert Baurath, secretary of the basketball league.

Speech-making was omitted. The following basketball managers were introduced: St. Ann's, Fred Barbetta; Prof's, James Petrino; Fifth Ward, Seddie Caro; Hibernians, Peter Harkins; Rohm & Haas, Jack Stein; Morrisville, Mickey Stradling. Franklin was represented by Frank Spinelli.

Joseph Diamanti, president of the league, presented St. Ann's A. A. with the championship trophy, and Thomas Juno awarded the runner-up trophy to the Profy team. An tournament just held and also to hold election of officers for the coming year. A business meeting was held and he introduced Samuel Shire delegate to the American Bowling Association convention recently held in Atlantic City.

A complete report of the convention was given by Mr. Shire. He stated that at the convention more than 3000 leagues and over one million bowlers had bowled in the congress tournament. He also said that the congress recommends that all bowling associations sponsor forming of junior leagues in bowling.

The next report called for by Mr. Robinson was from Warren Jennings, tournament manager. Mr. Jennings reported that when the tournament was started last year a lot of people said Bristol would not support a general tournament but strange as it seems there were 20 entries in last year's tournament and in this year's there were more than 1,500 lines running and 38 teams entered. The winning scores were far above the winning scores of last year.

Bristol Twp. Man Asks Divorce From Wife, A Bristol Resident

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 27.—The sum of $70,000 is sought by a Philadelphia couple, William C. and Alta Grace Shera, of the 500 block of E. Hill Creek Drive, representing one of the largest automobile damage claims ever instituted in the Bucks Co. Court of Common Pleas.

A Quakertown truck driver, Roy H. Napier, Bethlehem Pike, has been named the defendant in an action in trespass in which the wife, Alta Grace Shera, is claiming $50,000, and the husband, the second complainant, is seeking $20,000.

The first complainant, in a statement of claim filed in the office of Prothonotary Isaac S. Gross, avers that she was riding as a passenger in a station wagon which was being driven by Ruth Ann Corrigan, who is now dead.

The station wagon and defendant's truck figured in a collision at the intersection of Route 611 and the Doylestown - Dublin highway July 9, 1948.

Willis Beck, Fleetwing road, Bristol township, has named Lucy Beck, Jefferson avenue, Bristol, the defendant in a divorce suit. They were married October 3, 1932, in Doylestown and no date of separation was mentioned.

Cecil James Carey, whose address is unknown, has been sued for divorce by Agnes Mary Carey, Jones Lane,

The Atlantic Pact

In the all-but-universal deluge of our century. If America fails, freedom falls.

If this Alliance would help preserve America, we should be for it even if it involved a break with tradition. But it will not help preserve America. Its effect will be the very opposite: it will mean the destruction of America. The Pact is a measure neither of intelligence nor necessity, but another crowning evidence of the incompetence and culpable ignorance of those in charge of American policy at the very top level.

Where is the Intelligence?

First, let's clear away some underbrush. The good intentions of some supporters of the Pact are immaterial. The road to Hell is paved with good intentions. Sincerity is no substitute for intelligence. The noblest of men can be killed if he steers his car over a cliff in the naive belief he is on the highway. Mere good intent is no evidence the good intentioner is a realist.

The Atlantic Pact is a final repudiation of the basic concepts of the United Nations. With this step, America abandons the philosophy of "collective security" and embraces the philosophy of balance-of-power-alliances. No words of UN employees, delegates or anybody else can obscure this fact. All the pious talk about the Pact being "within the framework of the Charter" is eyewash, and every informed person knows it.

The National Economic Council has never had faith in the two attempts of our times to guarantee peace through "collective security." It was never really collective, and it brought more danger than security. The League of Nations was always more of a net irritant in world affairs than an emollient. The friction that its failure was due to the absence of the United States from its membership is palpably absurd. Its failure was due simply to the fact that the vital interests of its members were not identical but divergent, and each nation acted to serve what it believed to be its own vital interest—as anybody but an imbecile should have been able to predict.

The same situation developed in the UN, only much more quickly. "Collective security" is a dangerous illusion so long as divergent interests persist. So-called "statesmen" who ignore this primary fact are barely competent to be village selectmen.

Today, "statesmen" of this or smaller caliber who happen to have charge of the fate of millions of people, find these facts pressing in upon them. But they refuse to admit their miscalculation, even while abandoning the whole stupid mess. They have talked about "collective security" so loud and so long that in the very act of burying it, they tell us that the new Pact is "within the framework of the Charter."

Nor has the National Economic Council any faith in the new "balance of power." It is a bankrupt solution offered by bankrupts to conceal their failures.

Alliances to create power balances are about the oldest device known to history. Millennia ago, Egypt and the various great powers that succeeded each other in the East, habitually built up balance of power combinations against each other. They were all designed to "preserve peace," and they invariably resulted in war. The balance-of-power philosophy has dogged rulers of nations from the beginning of time, and of all the devices of statecraft it is perhaps the most discredited. The nearest it ever came to success was when in the latter half of the nineteenth and the first fourteen years of the twentieth century, Britain kept the continent of Europe in uneasy balance. But even that apparent success turned into the greatest disaster of recorded history. It gave us the two World Wars. So now we are going to try again!

How Balance Unbalances

The reasons why the balance-of-power theory always fails are simple. It exacerbates irritations between nations by investing every dispute with a graver possible consequence. Each side of the "balance" grows more suspicious of the other. General wars are made easier to start because, if a nation on one side gets into a dispute with a nation on the other, all nations of both combinations are automatically drawn in. Conflicts, instead of being localized, become universalized. Gasoline, not water, is thrown on the fire. Small nations belonging to one combination, emboldened by their alliance with more powerful nations, become truculent. Human nature being what it is, combined with the fact that disputes always arise, makes the final result mathematically predictable. The perfect example of this is how the nations were drawn one by one into World War I over a local dispute between Austria and Serbia. Had Serbia not been under the protection of Russia, and had Austria not been allied with Germany, there would have been no World War in 1914.

Knowledge of such facts by Washington and the other founding fathers prompted them to urge their own generation, and their posterity (ourselves) not to enter entangling alliances. Their views were not paternalistic. They were the result of profound insight into the lessons of office, who is so foolish as to imagine the Republican Party or any other party could wrest control from the gang in power in the Administration today? Then, by aid of the pending "Economic Stability" act, the American people would have become veritably enslaved.

The "controls" would simply be the use of force to hide the fact that the whole economy is running at a ruinous deficit—a deficit which at some day of reckoning must be paid either in diluted money or in the ruin of Americans who have savings upon which they depend. Control of a deficit-operated economy means only expropriation (that is, stealing) of goods that others have accumulated. The Politicians may control, but they will not pay. The people will pay with impoverishment.

But let us ask a further question: Will Congress appropriate the money? Almost certainly it will not appropriate the huge sums mentioned above. And if Congress compromises, what will be the result?

Compromise will be disaster compounded. If we give Western Europe less than the minimum necessary to hold off the Red Army, we guarantee that at some future date, to be decided by the Politburo alone, Western Europe can be occupied. Then, if we have anything left, we shall face the task of again organizing vast armies to retake the Continent for our Allies.

But this is precisely what the Alliance is supposed and intended to prevent. The peoples of Western Europe are not interested in that kind of war, even if victorious. They do not want to be occupied, then liberated. They want not to be occupied. The only reason this Alliance interests them at all is that in it they see a hope of avoiding Soviet occupation.

Yet, if we give them less than the minimum that they now request—or demand—they cannot resist occupation.

The leaders of the Western European governments may be foggy social theorists, but as to occupation they can be counted upon to be stark realists. The great majority of their people wish to avoid occupation. What will happen if they see that, after all the fanfare and oratory, America does not give them enough to defend themselves? They are almost certain to try to get the best terms they can from the Soviet Union.

To ratify the Alliance, then, but not to implement it with vast armament, will infallibly result in throwing Western Europe into the embrace of the Soviets. All Marshall Plan funds will have been wasted. Whatever armament we have sent will be under the control of those who have entered the Soviet orbit.

We'd Better Face It Now
The alternatives we have set forth are real, and we had better learn to live with them. We can bankrupt our economy to provide Western Europe with the minimum necessary, and thereby plunge ourselves irremediably into State Socialism. Or, we can give Western Europe less than the minimum, and ensure that those nations will presently make terms with Soviet Russia.

But the first alternative is not so simple as it sounds. Even if we should make the sacrifices necessary to arm Western Europe, we could not be sure of stopping the Soviet Union. Communist infiltration in Western Europe has gone too far for us to count upon an undivided effort from our Allies in case war should begin even after they have been adequately armed. There is no guarantee that both Italy and France would not be rent by civil war of such a nature as to paralyze their armies and render them impotent to protect their frontiers. Indeed, such civil war is highly probable.

Even what would happen in Britain is clouded with doubt. The Labor Government there is still supplying both Russia and Poland with implements and machinery essential for war. Infiltration of Communists and Communist-sympathizers within the Labor government is much greater than commonly understood. There is grave reason to believe that in Great Britain, Communist agents could seize or destroy vital communications and power centers and take other action to prevent any effective war effort being launched from Britain.

Who, then, would march against the Soviet Union on the continent? Would the Red tide be stemmed by the armies of Luxembourg, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Belgium and Portugal?

Another fact that complicates the rearming of Western Europe lies in the power of the Soviet Union itself. Are we so naive as to imagine that the masters of the Kremlin will sit by idle if they see us actually building up preponderant military power in the West?

And it deserves note that in the framing of the Atlantic Pact, Spain has been left out. Yet Spain is potentially the strongest anti-Communist country on the continent of Europe. The leaving out of Spain is a clear indication that Marxist influences had a powerful say in the

By FRANK R. KENT

New "Liberal" Leader?

Washington, April 27.
THE new Senator from North Carolina, Dr. Frank P. Graham, appointed to fill an unexpired term, comes so widely advertised as a "great liberal" that some say he will soon leap into the leadership of that strangely assorted and rather cloudy-minded group, both Democrats and Republicans, who, linked together under the vague name of "liberalism," constantly and boringly mouth the word.

IT is a possibility. On the other hand, there is hope—exceedingly slight, it is true—that his personal taste, his contacts with other senators and the responsibilities of his new job may somewhat dilute Dr. Graham's extreme "liberalism" and induce him to consider political realities the existence of which so far apparently he has slight knowledge. However, it must be admitted there is nothing in the good doctor's past record and nothing in his conversation and companions since he arrived in Washington upon which to base this hope.

THE odds are heavy that he will pursue the course upon which he embarked some years ago and which has won him the adulation and admiration of most of the extreme left-wingers and bleeding-heart statesmen in both parties. An example of this occurred right after his appointment. His name came up in the Senate and a debate ensued. There was no suggestion from anyone that Dr. Graham was not a thoroughly patriotic and loyal citizen but it was brought out that he seemed to have an irresistible tendency to join organizations and associations regarded by the Un-American Activities Committee and the FBI as subversive, and that some of them had been Communist fronts. The most that was said about this was that he had been "careless," did not know they were communistically controlled.

IMMEDIATELY two of our most valiant and vociferous senatorial "liberals," one a Democrat, the other a Republican, to wit, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, and Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, rushed to his "defense," became lyrical in their eulogies. Not everyone would rejoice at entering the Senate under the championship of these two statesmen. It has been said that Senator Pepper is less beloved by his colleagues regardless of party than any other member of their body. A more likable character or personality, Senator Morse perhaps is more valuable. Not long ago, some senator, without mentioning names, expressed his desire for some relief from what he called the "talking senators."

Fourth, while not being indifferent to the fate of free peoples anywhere, we should become reconciled to the reality that it does not lie within our means or power to see to the defense of everybody. If the USSR occupies Western Europe, it will be a tragedy. But the tragedy will not be as great for them or for us as the alternatives that would follow adoption of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Nor would Soviet conquest of Europe be permanent. Students of the history of Empires know well that the conqueror is normally beaten, not by external force, but by the weaknesses and internal contradictions of the system he himself sets up. In our opinion the USSR, in taking over Europe and Asia, will be attempting far too much. Within a few years this will become apparent. And when freedom-loving peoples at last revolt against bondage, their case will be much more hopeful than if the Continent had first been blasted by bitter, atomic war.

The Over-Staffed Giant
Indeed we think that if this strategy is followed, we may never have to fight the USSR at all. Doubtless they expect and want to rule the world. But with more than they can digest in Europe and Asia, their conquests will weaken rather than strengthen them. The very rigidity of the Soviet leaders in not permitting the smallest variation from their own blue-prints among satellites, can be their undoing. And the existence of a unified, homogeneous core of armed power in our own Hemisphere will dissuade them from attacking us if they have two fermenting continents to hold down.

American participation in two world wars has, on balance, multiplied the evil results of both wars. While we went into the first with the best of motives, and were slyly and deceptively maneuvered into the second, if we permit alien influence to shape our course now, then America is doomed.

She will have been reconquered by those tyrannies from which our ancestors fled the Old World to escape.

MERWIN K. HART
President,
National Economic Council, Inc.

Next morning, promptly applying this to himself, Senator Morse entered upon a speech that lasted the whole afternoon and filled ten solid pages of the Congressional Record. It was devoted almost entirely to an explanation of himself as a "liberal" and his definition of "liberalism," along with affirmation of his right to talk and his determination to keep on talking, whether nonliberal senators are bored or not.

SEVERAL of his colleagues interrupted to tell Senator Morse what a fine character he really is. Modestly deprecating this personal praise as from "biased friends," Senator Morse then really went to town in describing his unshakable determination to battle for the "underdog" while life lasts. Why Mr. Morse places Dr. Graham "high up" on any list of the "Greatest Americans" may be due to three reasons—1. that they served together on the Roosevelt National War Labor Board; 2. that though named to represent the public there, generally they were as strongly pro labor as the labor representatives themselves; 3. that their manner of expressing their views is almost as similar as their views.

FOR example in one famous extremely pro-union opinion written in 1942, Dr. Graham likened the labor unions to the early Christians of the great Roman Empire who, despite oppression and persecution finally "transformed the sackable City of Rome into the unshakable City of God." In another part of the same opinion he linked the unions with the Pilgrim Fathers in these words: "The little band of religious Pilgrims who in seeking the right to organize for the worship of God... fetched up on the wintry shores of Massachusetts where their spiritual heroism made Plymouth Rock one of the foundation stones of self-government in America." It is not likely Senator Morse would dissent from these comparisons. His senatorial records seem to prove his acquiescence.

DR. GRAHAM is hardly going to disappoint either such ardent admirers as the Messrs. Pepper and Morse—or the CIO bosses who joyously cheered his appointment. Also, he has said that in general he favors the "Truman policies" which caused Mr. Truman to write an exceedingly eulogistic letter about him. By some it is held that his presence and influence in the Senate may make possible successful revival of Mr. Truman's "civil-rights" program. However, there is some doubt, Dr. Graham could, as a general, favor the Truman "civil-rights" program and still believe, as does Senator Taft, that a Federal law is not the way to make it effective. Also, he could be in favor of the modification of the Taft-Hartley Act without regarding it as wholly evil and desiring its complete obliteration. Also, it might be hat once in the Senate, he would not entirely subscribe to the soothing, not to say, soft-headed, New Deal theory that deficits are unimportant and the size of the national debt is immaterial.

AFTER all, despite periods of "carelessness," Dr. Graham is an upright, able and upright man. Maybe as a senator facts will mean more to him than they did when he was just a crusader for the good the true and the beautiful without power to do anything much except join something. It may be his perspective will change and he be able better to distinguish demagogues from statesmen and humbugs from honest men. There isn't much hope, but there is some.

And when little Hansel and his sister Gretel fall into the clutches of the wicked and deceitful old witch it seems that the children are having more than their share of troubles and distressing adventures—which only makes the "happily ever after" ending that much more satisfying.

The happy ending in a Clare Tree Major production does not come until the youngsters in the audience have had all the excitement, thrills and merriment their young hearts can safely absorb.

Claims Mrs. Major: "While it is, of course, necessary for children to understand realities, so that they may cope with the world of today it is also imperative that their faith in the future is firmly grounded. I find in the simple fairy tale one of the most efficacious means of instilling this faith."

A former Croydon youth has admitted, it is stated, that he set fires because he is "alone and friendless."

The young man, who pleaded to be sent to jail, is Clifford T. Bright. He was held without bail for the grand jury yesterday by Magistrate V. A. Dean, in Philadelphia.

Arrest of Bright took place when he walked into the Detective Division in City Hall, Philadelphia, and admitted setting a fire in a chair in his room in the 1000 block of Spruce street, Philadelphia, Sunday, according to detectives.

Queried for a time, Bright is said to have stated that he has no friends, adding, "nobody cares for me."

TOWNSHIP NINE RALLIES BUT FALLS SHORT OF WIN

A Bristol Township rally fell short yesterday afternoon as Coach Stan Dick's team bowed to the Bristol High aggregation, 9-8, on Memorial Park field. It was the third straight win for the Warriors.

Bristol had a nice 9-1 lead going into the last half of the ninth when trouble started. Pearl got his second hit of the afternoon, a double to right. Densley batted for Conn and struck out. Struble walked but was picked off first for the second out. Ehrenfeld hit to Braam who fumbled. Muth singled to right and Pearl crossed. Harry Eisenbrey whopped a double to right and both Muth and Ehrenfeld scored. Bob Jones' two-bagger scored Eisenbrey with the fourth run. Lou Loeffler was purposely passed and Rigby ended the game by fanning.

Coach Jerry Bloom used two hurlers in the game. Joe Lindar started and when he weakened in the sixth, Jim Morrell went in. Paul Schmidt and Lane Conn hurried for Township, the latter throwing in the last half of the sixth. Pindar was the winning pitcher while the defeat went to Schmidt.

Harry Eisenbrey, Township first-sacker, was the hitting star of the afternoon, getting a single, double and triple. Both Frank Barbetta and Frank Rich had two hits for Bristol with the latter driving in three runs. Pearl had two for two for Township and also scored a pair of markers.

Barbetta did a fine job behind the plate for the Warriors. He tossed out two runners attempting to steal and also picked a runner off third and another off first.

Bristol took a 1-0 lead in the first when two out, Barbetta singled and scored on a hit by Bill Moll and Nichol's error. It added two more to the second on a walk, a hit batsman, two stolen bases and two errors.

Township scored its first run in the third. Struble singled, and went to second on Rich's error. He advanced to third on Braam's error and scored on a wild pitch.

Joe Dominick's long triple and Pindar's hit gave Coach Bloom's team its fourth run in the fourth but Township tied it in the fifth. After Holston struck out, Pearl had a single, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Schmidt's single. Struble hit safely and after Ehrenfeld flied out, Muth doubled to score two runs. Eisenbrey grounded out.

Bristol added three tallies in the fifth. Moll walked and stole second. He crossed the plate on Rich's hit. Rich stole. Petrizzzi flied out, scoring Moll. Dominick was hit with a pitched ball. Basco singled to right, scoring Rich. Moll scored while Pindar was being thrown out.

The Warriors' final pair of runs were made off Conn. After Morrell grounded out, Barbetta singled to center. He advanced on a passed ball. Moll walked. Rich scored both runners with a long hit to center.

Both Petrizzzi and Dominick struck out.

Township's four-run spurge followed in the seventh frame.
